Frio is the name of my sister who died unexpectedly and that was the cause of me developing such a serious fear of ghosts. I heard the story that my sister was driving on the road as she was lost from the map and she found herself in a lone and creepy forest. She drove on to find her way but she could not find any road or a way out. She started to feel scared and kept feeling of moving and the scarier she got, she lost all of her strength. Rapidly advancing human technology has resulted in greater knowledge, greater intelligence, and finally greater power. In a few decades, humans are no longer even using a primitive stone tool. This is the history of the human race in a place called Lumina, in which the Earth is not even a speck in the sky. The people of Lumina are unique. They can grow up in a week, they are not ruled by the time, and they can do incredible things without limits, if they want. Lumina's history began in the year 2011. Excitement and terror were raging in the district of Blume in Lumina. An otherworldly creature had come to them, something that they had never seen before, and it had to be brought back to the place where it had come from. Quintessential Latin flavor right in your own backyard "I like a fresh and new approach to the menu," says Michael Sinatra, chef and owner of his namesake restaurant in the Brookside area of St. Louis. "And with olive oil and fresh herbs, things feel so clean and light." For example, the soup of the day is his signature red wine, tomato and basil bisque, and the crab and artichoke dip is a cinch to make. The house specialty is the wood-fired flatbread pizzas. "They're not your typical, thin pizza. The flatbread is like a pillowy, soft pretzel that has a little bit of cheese baked in it," says Sinatra. "And then you add toppings. I make a really good 'badass' version of pesto, and garlic and herbs as well." For dessert, Sinatra serves a simple cappuccino mousse with a choice of cheeses, or fruit kabobs with macadamia nuts, chocolate chips and mint leaves, or vanilla bean ice cream. "The menu is fun. People are more interested in eating something different," he says. Sinatra, who spent time on the North Carolina coast and then in New Orleans before moving to St. Louis in 2002, brings a bit of his New Orleans cooking to his menu. He uses a lot of seafood, especially crab, and a lot of fresh vegetables and herbs. In a city where he opened up and taught a slew of chefs before
